STATUTORY AUTHORITY

The South Carolina Department of Corrections was created in 1960 by Section §55-292, South Carolina Code of Laws as follows: "There is hereby created as an administrative agency of the State government the Department of Corrections. The functions of the Department shall be to implement and carry out the policy of the State with respect to its prison system, as set forth in § 55-291, and the performance of such other duties and matters as may be delegated to it pursuant to law."

Section § 55-291 as referred to in Section § 55-292 sets out the Declaration of Policy as follows: "It shall be the policy of this State in the operation and management of the Department of Corrections to manage and conduct the Department in such a manner as will be consistent with the operation of a modern prison system, and with the view of making the system self-sustaining, and that those convicted of violating the law and sentenced to a term in the State Penitentiary shall have humane treatment, and be given opportunity, encouragement and training in the matter of reformation."

BRIEF HISTORY OF THE SOUTH CAROLINA DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS

Although the South Carolina Department of Corrections was created in 1960, the state correctional system it represents was founded in the 1860's when the General Assembly passed an act to establish a state penitentiary to transfer jurisdiction over convicted prisoners from the counties to the state. The transfer of jurisdiction back to the counties began two decades later and, by the late 1930's, county supervisors assumed full authority to choose keeping convicts in road construction or transferring them to the state. Thus, a state system of correctional facilities has survived.

When the original State Penitentiary was completed, it was a single granite building without sewage and plumbing facilities designed to hold 400 inmates of both sexes and all ages. During the first several decades of existence a pattern of expansion and innovation developed in such areas as the introduction of farming in 1877, segregation of young boys from older prisoners in 1893, allowing chaplains to conduct services in 1903, construction of a hospital in 1905, establishment of a chair factory as the first prison industry in 1917, and the authorization to construct a women's building in 1937.

Overcrowding and alleged mismanagement prevailed. Following a surge of public interest in existing Penitentiary conditions, the Legislature appointed a committee in 1959 to investigate the situation. As a result, the South Carolina Department of Corrections was established in 1960. This reorganization produced the most progressive decade in correctional reform in South Carolina, which led to improved treatment programs and a system of decentralization which forms the current overall structure of the Department.

SOUTH CAROLINA DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS INSTITUTIONS AND DIVISIONS

INSTITUTIONS

The present state correctional system has emerged from a single institution formerly known as the State Penitentiary. This original building has undergone considerable renovations, renamed the Central Correctional Institution, and presently is the major element in the total system of seventeen institutions. Modern correctional systems emphasize individual, differential treatment and community-based rehabilitation. Therefore, each institution is oriented toward meeting the needs of a particular group of inmates as evidenced by the variation in physical design, length of confinement of inmates, degree of security, and types of rehabilitative programs offered. (Details are in Table 1).

Under normal design standards, the seventeen institutions have a total capacity of 2,976. Excluding Central Correctional Institution, individual capacities range from 48 to 300.

The only maximum-medium security institution, Central Correctional Institution, has a designed capacity of 1,100. The two maximum security facilities are the Reception and Evaluation Center and the Maximum Detention and Retraining Center. Of the 13 minimum security facilities, seven are community pre-release centers, one is a farm, two are exclusively for younger offenders (age 17 to 25), one is for females of all ages, one is for the male aged and handicapped, and one is for trustee grade inmates of all ages. While the seven community pre-release centers have normal capacities ranging from 48 to 120, the other minimum security institutions have normal capacities ranging from 74 to 300. There is only one medium security institution. It accommodates male youths, and has a designed capacity of 300.

Other than the 17 institutions listed in Table 1, facilities of the Department also include a hospital and the Stoney Psychiatric Building.

Hospital—The hospital, Central Medical Center, serves inmates of all institutions. This building is located in the compound of Central Correctional Institution at 1515 Gist Street in downtown Columbia.

Stoney Psychiatric Center—This is a facility administered jointly by the Department of Mental Health and the Department of Corrections for observation and evaluation of offenders referred by the courts. Severely disturbed inmates of the Department of Corrections are also admitted for treatment. This facility has a capacity of 40 beds and is located in the compound of Central Correctional Institution.

DIVISIONS

The South Carolina Department of Corrections has five administrative divisions. Briefly each division has its functions as follows:

- A. Division of Institutional Operations—This division is primarily responsible for the operation of the major institutions of the Department. These institutions currently number nine and are largely located in the Columbia metropolitan area. This division also has responsibility for a range of associated staff service functions such as: a) facility maintenance, engineering and construction, b) food service and canteens, c) agriculture, and d) transportation and communication.
- B. Division of Administrative Operations—This division has responsibility for a series of staff functions including 1) correctional industries, 2) personnel, 3) commissary, 4) purchasing and property control and 5) financial operations (bookkeeping and internal auditing). In Fiscal Year 1973 the Personnel Department reports that a total of 2,064 applicants were interviewed, 483 applicants were hired and 90 employees were promoted. The number of employees on the payroll for the periods ending June 30, 1972 and 1973 was 896 and 907 respectively.

- C. Division of Specialized Services—This division is responsible for the development of specialized treatment and rehabilitation services of the Department. These services include 1) social work, 2) psychiatric services, 3) pastoral care, 4) psychological services, 5) medical service, 6) education, 7) recreation and physical education, 8) drug treatment program, 9) classification, 10) work-study release, 11) paraprofessional training, 12) Project MATE, and 13) volunteer service. This division also provides a primary liaison for the Department with other state agencies providing cooperative staff services, such as the Department of Vocational Rehabilitation.
- D. Division of Planning and Research—This division has responsibility for the development of a research program for the department encompassing both improved institutional management and inmate rehabilitation. As a function of this primary responsibility, the division also acts as the planning element for the Department. This division also publishes the Department's newspaper, The Intercom, and plans are being made to distribute this paper to inmate families and friends.
- E. Division of Community Programs—This division is responsible for the administration and operation of seven local pre-release centers which provide state-wide coverage. These institutions are operated to provide a transitional work and living experience in local communities of the state for inmates prior to their discharge from the Department.
- F. Division of Youthful Offenders—This division was created as a function of the Department in 1968 primarily to provide specialized care of youthful offenders under indeterminate sentencing. This program essentially operates as a micro-correctional system within the Department. The division provides a complete range of administrative, evaluative and after-care services tailored to the youthful offender. It does not, however, operate separate institutions for the inmates. This division provides specialized caseworkers and counselors within the institutions of the Department.

By Section § 55-587 of the South Carolina Code of Laws, the Department has the responsibility of enforcing minimum standards within the county-city correctional system. This responsibility is performed by the Jail and Prison Inspection Division which is a functional unit directly under the Director. Staff of this division inspect city and county jails within the state and prepare reports and submit recommendations for improvement of conditions and a more standardized system. In Fiscal Year 1973 a total of 158 penal facilities were inspected; of that total, 58 facilities were found unsatisfactory on the first inspection and 15 facilities were closed. In addition, a total of 134 city and county personnel were trained in jail management and operations by the staff of the Jail and Prison Inspection Division.

SOUTH CAROLINA DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS

INTERNAL CHANGES IN ORGANIZATION

To effect more efficient planning, management and coordination of services, the Department of Corrections made several internal changes in organization and added a few key positions to its staff.

1. In August, 1972, two new Ombudsmen were appointed by the Director to review any complaints or allegations by inmates or employees against the South Carolina Department of Corrections.
2. In November, 1972, the Occupational Safety and Health Division was created to monitor the working conditions of the Department of Corrections and to bring the Department into compliance with the Occupational Safety and Health Act. Each institution, center, division or separate identity has a designated safety administrator who devotes an established amount of his work time to safety responsibilities.
3. Mr. George Martin was selected as the Correctional Classification Coordinator for the Department in November, 1972. The Coordinator is responsible for supervising the classification teams located at Central and Manning Correctional Institutions. Presently, there are five such teams at CCI and four teams at MCI. These teams review the inmate's progress every six months and make recommendations to the Coordinator concerning services and training for the inmate.
4. Mr. W. T. Cave was appointed to the position of Executive Assistant to the Director for Staff Development and Training in December, 1972. The training staff is located at the South Carolina Criminal Justice Training Academy and instructs correctional personnel in administration, communications, security, correctional policies, criminology, sociology, psychology and counseling.
5. In January, 1973, the administrative responsibility for the Reception and Evaluation Center was transferred from the Division of Institutional Operations to the Division of Specialized Services, with the reception and evaluation activities under the primary supervision of the office of the Classification Coordinator.

CHANGES IN ENABLING LEGISLATION PASSED DURING FY 1973

During Fiscal Year 1973, the following legislation was enacted or amended:

(R 244, S 139)—On April 5, 1973, a bill was ratified which amended 55-11 of the Code so as to allow the automatic grant of pre-sentence jail time to inmates who qualify under the provisions of the Bill.

(R 569, S 323)—On June 14, 1973, a bill was ratified which amended 55-8 of the Code so as to allow for the aggregation of consecutive sentences for the purpose of good time.

PROGRAMS ADMINISTERED BY THE SOUTH CAROLINA DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS

The South Carolina Department of Corrections operates and administers a variety of correctional programs, some of which are either entirely or partly supported by federal grants. There are also programs which are supported by state funds because they have been in operation over such a long period of time that they are now an established integral part of the system. The Department's programs can be grouped into the following categories:

- A. Institutional Treatment Programs
- B. Educational, Vocational and Technical Training Programs
- C. Correctional Industries
- D. Community-Based Rehabilitation Programs
- E. Research and Development Programs
- F. Special Programs

A. Institutional Treatment Programs

1. Classification and Assignments: Inmates entering the South Carolina Department of Corrections are received at the Reception and Evaluation Center where they go through a series of interviews, examinations and tests which document the inmate's social and medical history, determine psychological aptitudes and measure vocational skills. The Classification and Assignment Board, drawing upon the evaluation information and individual interviews with the inmate, makes recommendations concerning treatment services and educational and/or vocational training. In addition, the Board assigns the inmate to the institution most appropriate to his needs. The Board consists of the Classification Coordinator, the Reception and Evaluation Center Superintendent and his Administrative Assistant, the Vocational Rehabilitation Project Supervisor, one psychiatric social worker and the Reception and Evaluation Center chaplain.

2. Medical and Dental Health Care: A medical staff consisting of full-time and part-time physicians, dentists, nurses and medical technicians provide medical and dental services to the inmate population. The departmental hospital, Central Medical Center, is located in the compound of Central Correctional Institution. In Fiscal Year 1973 the hospital admitted 790 persons and discharged 762. In addition, there were a total of 12,053 examinations performed by physicians at the Central Medical Center for the same period.
3. Psychological and Psychiatric Services: The department's psychiatrist and psychologists provide counseling services for inmates needing such treatment. A total of 646 individuals and 81 group inmate counseling sessions were held by Psychological Services in Fiscal Year 1973. In addition, inmates having chronic psychological problems can be admitted to the Stoney Psychiatric Center which is staffed by the Department of Mental Health. However, this facility is mainly for observing and evaluating offenders referred by the courts.
4. Social Services: The South Carolina Department of Corrections has six social workers who provide counseling and referral services to inmates and, to some extent, their families.
5. Recreation: The Recreation staff organizes competitive athletic activities at all institutions. Each unit maintains athletic fields and equipment suitable for most sports activities, ranging from softball to weightlifting and boxing; art, hobby and handicraft programs are also available. Approximately 60 men per year participate in the Art Program and the Department holds an art show each year. Four bands are organized in the Department, two of which are permitted to accept outside engagements for churches, community clubs, non-profit organizations and South Carolina government-sponsored affairs.

6. Religion: Religious programs and counseling interviews conform with the inmate's schedule of rehabilitation treatment. The individual inmate is placed in religious activities which will best help with his personal problems. Each unit of the Department has some form of a chapel for regular Sunday services.

7. Drug Abuse Treatment: A Comprehensive Drug Abuse Treatment and Prevention Program is designed to provide rehabilitation services for incarcerated drug addicts and also provides a large-scale prevention oriented education program. Services include medical treatment, counseling, vocational training in the institutions, activity/talent therapy, ultimate job placement, and family counseling in the community centers. Since its inception in December 1971, treatment availability under this program has expanded from three institutions to ten. The concomitant growth in the number of clients receiving treatment has increased from an initial 185 to the present level of 331.

8. Alcohol Treatment: Alcohol counselors provide counseling services to inmates who admit having a drinking problem. The South Carolina Commission on Alcoholism has furnished funds to the South Carolina Department of Corrections for FY 1973 to provide for an alcohol planner who will develop a comprehensive alcohol treatment program.

B. Education, Vocational and Technical Training Programs

1. Adult Basic Education: Inmates with less than a fifth grade achievement level are required to enroll in an adult basic education class. This program, to help to alleviate illiteracy, is provided through the cooperation and assistance of the Adult Education Division of the South Carolina State Department of Education and the Office of Economic Opportunity.

2. State High School Program: By this program, inmates are able to complete high school work, and upon passing the state examination, receive certificates of high school equivalency.
3. Vocational Education: The Department offers a variety of vocational and technical training programs. Examples are: welding, brick masonry, auto mechanics, fender and body repair, barbering, heavy equipment operation and repair, dental prosthetics, and computer technology. Funding is provided through numerous interagency agreements and federal grants.
4. Higher Education: For inmates with a high school education, the Department provides opportunities for further advancement at the college level. Twenty-six inmates currently are enrolled in full-time college courses offered at the Central Correctional Institution and conducted by the University of South Carolina.

C. Correctional Industries

The Correctional Industries Division of South Carolina Department of Corrections provides a work program for inmates. This serves the purposes of eliminating idleness, motivating inmates to work and offering a modest source of income from incentive pay. The Department's Industries Division which is coordinated with vocational training programs includes such products as: bedclothing for penal and mental institutions, metal signs, vehicle license tags, furniture for schools and offices, and rebound textbooks for the State Department of Education. This division also offers upholstery services. The Correctional Industries Feasibility Study is attempting to expand this program by determining what additional industries or services might be possible in a correctional setting. This study, which began in June 1973, is funded through a grant from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration and will also attempt to identify methods of expanding the present market for products manufactured by correctional industries.

D. Community Programs

1. 30-Day Pre-Release Program: Ninety-eight percent of all inmates released from the Department of Corrections, including those being assigned to the Accelerated Pre-Release and Work Release Programs, participate in the 30-Day Pre-Release Program at the Watkins Pre-Release Center. This program began in October 1964, and as of June 30, 1973, 5,848 have participated in the series of pre-release training sessions designed to facilitate the inmate's integration into the free community. Volunteer speakers from the community instruct the inmates in such topic areas as employment, family, finances, law and community services.
2. 120-Day Accelerated Pre-Release Program: The 120-Day Program was established in January, 1968, encompassing the last 120 days of incarceration and incorporating work release principles. This program permits the selected inmates to live in a community pre-release center under supervisory control and work in the community using skills which he has learned or improved while incarcerated.
3. Work Release Program: The South Carolina Department of Corrections started its work release program in March, 1966 to provide selected inmates with a longer period of transition and gainful employment in the community. Inmates participating in this program are transported daily to jobs in private business within the community, and are returned at night to community centers. Wages earned by these inmates are used to pay for their room, board, and transportation costs, and to send home to support families or for purchasing personal items. A similar but less extensive work-release program exists for female inmates. Presently, the Department has 7 community pre-release/work-release centers located in or near population centers of the State.

4. Project Transition: In coordination with the work-release and pre-release programs, the South Carolina Department of Corrections also operates Project Transition, which is designed to obtain quality employment for inmates on work-release or for ex-offenders of the Department after they undergo four weeks of pre-employment and adjustment training. Job development-placement specialists work with employers throughout the State to secure quality employment opportunities. Job coaches and volunteers work with ex-offenders after employment and facilitate their adjustment in the community.
5. Furloughs and Passes: Furloughs and passes allow inmates to be away from the institution for a short period of time. Three furloughs of 48-hour duration are allowed annually; during Easter, Labor Day and Christmas. Passes of shorter duration are now being used as incentive measure at the community pre-release centers. Passes are discretionary and are of 24-30 hours duration.
6. Work Study Release Program: Selected inmates are placed in a work-study release center in the community where they enroll in a technical or higher education curriculum. They also work part-time or full-time, while learning, and are expected to reimburse the Department for room and board either then or at a later date.

E. Research and Development Programs

1. Collective Violence Research Project: This is an 18-month research project which the South Carolina Department of Corrections started in August 1971, with a grant from the National Institute of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice. The objectives are to obtain a better understanding of the causes and conditions which foment riots and disturbances for dealing with these causes and conditions so that riots and disturbances can be more effectively prevented. This project has concluded and two reports have been published.
2. Mental Retardation Study: The objectives of this eight-month project are to examine the problem of retardation among the inmate population, and to propose realistic methods for dealing with retarded inmates. The study began in February, 1973, and funds were made available through the Developmental Disabilities Services and Facilities Construction Act of 1970 by contract with the South Carolina Department of Mental Retardation and the Governor's Office, Division of Administration.

3. Alcohol Related Offenders Research Projects This one-year project is funded by the South Carolina Commission on Alcoholism and is a study of alcohol-related offenders confined in the South Carolina Department of Corrections. The final objective of the project, which began in March, is to provide direction for the development of a more comprehensive alcohol treatment program for inmates in the South Carolina Department of Corrections.

4. Inmate Classification Study: This twelve-month project is a study of the classification system and process in the South Carolina Department of Corrections. The final goal of the study is the development of a more efficient classification system that provides for the needs of inmates and fulfills the correctional objectives of the Department.

F. Special Programs

1. Youthful Offender Division: South Carolina in recent years has recognized the particular problems of the younger public offenders who have come before the courts. The South Carolina Legislature demonstrated its concern for the youthful offender problem by enacting the Youthful Offender Act in 1968. This legislation gave the South Carolina Department of Corrections the opportunity and responsibility for a basic and statewide program for youthful offenders between the ages of 17 and 21 years. Certain cases, by written consent of the individual, can be extended through age 24. The Department's Youthful Offender Division administers a comprehensive and integrated program for rehabilitation of youthful offenders which includes evaluation and diagnostic services, a variety of training programs, regular case reviews, counseling, placement services and supervision upon release.

2. Staff Training and Development Project: This is a program which the South Carolina Department of Corrections administers as a unit within the South Carolina Criminal Justice Academy. This program, funded in June 1972 by the United States Department of Labor as a sub-contract of the Comprehensive Offender Rehabilitation Program, provides a comprehensive training program for correctional employees. Courses offered include Corrections, Criminal Justice Administration, Criminology, Human Relations, and Counseling. Program participants also undergo a period of on-the-job training.

3. Paraprofessional Training Program: It is the goal of this project to identify inmates who have the potential to help others and to then train them to be effective helpers. Additionally, trained ex-offenders will be utilized as counselors and counselor aides in a number of projects currently in the planning stage. This program is also funded by the United States Department of Labor as a sub-contract of Comprehensive Offender Rehabilitation Program.

4. Occupational Safety and Health Division: This division was formed in November, 1972 and is responsible for enforcing the standards required by the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970. All seventeen institutions/centers and four separate activities have established accident/injury record-keeping standards. In addition the division is responsible for all safety training in the Department concerning safe work conditions and practices.
